A letter from St. Germain's, dated Dec. 10.

Says, "I am very well aſſured that Madame le Dauphine has apartments fitting up for her reception, either in, or which are to be converted into, a ſtable, for the recovery of her health: Her highneſs's malady is ſuppoſed to be a conſumption, & it ſeems a poor man who had been given over in that diſorder, is ſuppoſed to have recovered meerly from having, thro neceſſity, lain ſome time in a warm ſtable, near many horſes, and much dung. As there is nothing repugnant to reaſon in this experiment, I ſend you this account to make it univerſally known by publication in your paper."

"At his Majeſty's royal powder mills at Feverſham, this morning, about five minutes after the clock ſtruck twelve, a ſtove, in which were 25 barrels of gunpowder, blew up; happily no perſon was near at the time. The exploſion was ſo great as to be heard 20 miles diſtant. From private Advices by the laſt Veſſels, we are inform'd that there was the greateſt Reaſon to hope the Reſtrictions upon the Governors of the ſeveral Engliſh American Colonies, againſt paſſing Money Bills of Paper Currency, would be wholly taken off, without any Conditions inconſiſtent with Engliſh Liberty, ſoon after the ſetting of the Parliament, which was to meet the 16th of January.

"My Lords,

THE occaſion of my reſigning the ſeals, as one of his Majeſty's principal ſecretaries of ſtate, has occaſioned many ſurmiſes, conjectures and reports, all of which are equally injurious to my honour and reputation. It has been confidently aſſerted that I reſigned my employments through an inſuperable diſlike and averſion to buſineſs. It has alſo, my Lords, been aſcribed to an inordinate love of pleaſures and other courſes, which (from my SOUL) I abhor! And it has been imputed to a miſunderſtanding and want of confidence in the Lords and Gentlemen with whom I was ſo lately joined in adminiſtration. But, my Lords, I now declare and aver, upon my honour and truth (yea, my SALVATION!) that my reſignation of office took riſe from no ſuch motives or conſiderations.

My Lords I have choſen to withdraw from the publick concerns of this nation until THAT MAN ſhall be called upon to take the helm of government in his hand, who I believe alone capable of reſtoring the loſt and ruined dignity of theſe kingdoms: And, my Lords, I truſt and firmly believe that the time is not far diſtant, and when it does come, if HE ſhall think me worthy, I ſhall be willing to ſerve under him in a ſubaltern and ſubordinate ſtation.

Meſſieurs EDES and GILL,

Pleaſe to inſert the following, and you'll oblige your conſtant Reader. B. B.

MR. B. S. in the Evening-Poſt of the 6th inſt. with a good deal of candour and judgment, pointed out the conſequence of acting Plays at ſuch unſeaſonable hours. Whether he be intirely ignorant of the real cauſe that obliges them to be performed at ſuch a time of night, or chuſes not to mention it, "is not for me to determine." The law that put a ſtop to theſe credible gentlemen who entertained their friends with a noble and decent Comedy or Tragedy; is that which obliges them to perform at ſuch hours, and not an account of aſſignations (as he is pleaſed to ſuppoſe). Mr. B. S. would do well to conſider before he throws out any further reflections againſt the preſent performers, whether nature has confin'd the Theatrical Genius to credible perſons (like himſelf) excluſive of thoſe of a more inſignificant character; and why a "Bungler or Cobler in one buſineſs, may not ſhine conſpicuous in another."

"Many in many Parts are known t'excell;
"But 'tis too hard for one to act all well."

Had the preſent Actors an opportunity of ſeeing a Play well exhibited, I am confident ſome of them might make as conſiderable a figure as any of thoſe credible gentlemen, or even Mr. B. S. himſelf; and I think the beſt way of his convincing the world that he is not a Bungler nor Cobler, would be to leave of writing, and diſplay his genius; and that of thoſe credible gentlemen, by entertaining the town with another noble and decent Comedy or Tradegy.

Meſſieurs EDES & GILL,

Pleaſe to give the following a Place in your next, which will greatly oblige one of your conſtant Readers, "A great Admirer of the FAIR SEX."

ON the 30th of laſt month, "The FAIR PENETENT" made an appearance in Boſton; ſhe then look'd very beautiful, and with her attendants made a very brilliant figure (her metamorphoſis and all things conſidered): But as there was a great deal of nonſenſical talk about her, and many impertinent things ſaid of her, beſides an inexplicable hypocritical fellow wrote ſuch a non-ſuch performance in the "Evening-Poſt," that ſhe left the town immediately (diſmiſſing her attendants at Boſton) and went to Cambridge, where a number of grand young gentlemen (who had before enter'd into her ſervice) immediately waited upon her, and invited her about a mile and a half from the town, where they moſt barbarouſly MURDER'D her before a number of grand ſpectators.---Oh! cruel Butchery.---worſe than "Coblers and Bunglers." 12

N. B. It is ſaid her beauty decay'd before ſhe got to Cambridge, and her behaviour quite alter'd.

* a Play acted here.

THE Honour of your Letter communicating to me a publick Teſtimony of ſo high a Nature, found me in a ſevere Fit of the Gout, which long diſabled me from uſing my Hand. Give me leave now, SIR, to offer my humbleſt Acknowledgments, and to aſſure you that, tho' late, they are not leſs warmly dictated by a true Senſe of reſpectful Gratitude towards the Houſe of Repreſentatives of the MASSACHUSETTS BAY. "I Received your Letter accompanying the ſeveral Affidavits reſpecting the Affair of Capt. Malcomb; but the Friends of the Officers were before-hand with you in forwarding their Affidavits. The Affair was even mentioned in Parliament before I received your's, but the Houſe diſmiſſed it as below their Notice. And indeed were they to attend to every Repreſentation of a Cuſtom-Houſe Officer, they could attend to nothing elſe. However, the Affair made ſome Noiſe, of which your Enemies attempted to avail themſelves.

I am clear with you that there are ſome among yourſelves who delight to give falſe Repreſentations of the Province. But I flatter myſelf your regular, dutiful and loyal Conduct will be a ſtanding Memorial in your Favor, and make the Reproach of all your Enemies return on their own Heads.

I thought, the beſt Method to ſerve you was, to take an Extract from your Letter, and add ſome Reaſoning of my own, taken from the Affidavits, and make a ſhort Caſe, which I carried to Lord SHELBURNE, with the Affidavits themſelves for Vouchers. With this my Lord was ſo well pleaſed, that he undertook to hand it round to all the Miniſtry for their Satisfaction. I told him all you deſired was to ſtand in your true Light of loyal Subjects, deteſting all tumultuous Oppoſition to lawful Authority. His Lordſhip appeared quite ſatisfied with your Repreſentation, and expreſſed his Sentiments of the Impropriety of ſuch Appeals to the Miniſtry.

The Expence of this Affair has been but ſmall. My being of Service to your Town and the Cauſe of Liberty, will always afford me Pleaſure."

Extract of another Letter from London, dated January 10, 1767.

"I AM oblig'd to you for the friendly Confidence you have plac'd in me; which I ſhall always make uſe of to the Advantage of your Province, to the utmoſt of my Power—Some Body writes unfavorably of your Province—It is of Conſequence to eraſe thoſe unfavorable Sentiments."

Meſſieurs EDES & GILL.

SInce the ever-memorable Repeal of the Stamp-Act, it has been the unwearied endeavor of a few uneaſy & factious perſons, diſappointed at that happy event, to deſtroy the tranquility of this province: They have been perpetually repreſenting us in diſagreable colours to our brethren and fellow-ſubjects in England, to the Miniſtry, and to the Parliament: Their malicious whiſpers have penetrated even the Royal Ear: It has been expreſſly ſaid by a miniſter of ſtate, a friend and patron of the colonies, that, "his Majeſty is extremely ſorry to obſerve any degree of ill-temper remaining in his colony of Maſſachuſetts Bay," &c. The Nobility have been told that "it is the intention of the Americans to bring the authority of the Parliament into contempt": Every trifling adventure of a cuſtom-houſe officer, has been carefully recorded, and whenever little altercations have ariſen, not worth the notice of a common conſtable, to ſerve the darling point, they have arreſted the attention even of men in exalted ſtations; and to make the beſt appearance, depoſitions have been taken and ſent home, and all the ſordid intereſt has been uſed to get them laid before the Parliament: We have a notable inſtance of this in the well-known affair of Capt. Malcom—Two or three cuſtom-houſe officers would fain have enter'd forcibly into Capt. Malcom's houſe, but he would not let them; and two or three boys in the ſtreet, or men if you pleaſe, happened to ſmile at the ſcene, or perhaps laughed aloud, for the town was all in perfect good humour, and ſo the matter ended. Some folks it is thought, were greatly mortified, that it did not end in pulling down houſes and blood-ſhed; but the people knew better than to do ſuch things: However, enough happened to work up a ſad narration; the tale is made, and eagerly the firſt opportunity is ſnatch'd to haſten it to the other ſide the water to be told there.—But lo, the ungrateful return! "your tale is an idle tale, and ye are a ſet of impertinent folks; the town have given no offence, and let us hear no more of ſuch matters." Sadly mortifying indeed! What, no whips and ſcorpions, no rods of iron to chaſtiſe this inſolent rabble! But in vain do they call; the people are not now viewed in that light—ye have ſpit your venom to no purpoſe—We dare to tell you, and we know it will make your teeth chatter, and perhaps your tongues too, you have done your worſt——you cannot any longer wound the character of a loyal people.—We know you have wrote, we know alſo what you have wrote—and we chuſe you ſhould go on to write—your letters are harmleſs to this people—yourſelves will feel the ill effects of them.——Thanks to the late patriotic houſe of aſſembly—they have alſo wrote—this town have wrote—and thro' favor, their letters have been well receiv'd.—We have reaſon to hope that his Majeſty's diſpleaſure, incurred by your ſlander, ſuch was your baneful influence then, is happily appeas'd; and we doubt not but the foundation of a mutual confidence between Great-Britain & her Colonies, is ſo ſolid and firm, as to be out of the power of your malice and envy to deſtroy it.
